Sleuths Mistook Girl's Brother and Charged Him with Attempted Abduction.

Too much spending money, a will of her own, and total ignorance of the dangers of a great city, prompted Miss Susie Egenington to leave her home and parents in Corning for a shopping trip and visit to her brother in New York without consulting her mother. As a result the girl, who is barely sixteen is in the woman's prison, Third Precinct station, Jersey City, waiting for her father to come from Corning to found that the way afraid brother would not find me.

Sent Word to Brother.

Young Albert Egenington is in business here, with an office in the Flatiron Building. The anxious father telegraphed to his son to meet the young woman on her arrival in Jersey City. Later anxiety overcame him and, fearing that the young man might not get the telegram, he telephoned the New York police to look out for the girl.

When the girl left an Erie Railroad train they recognized her by the description. As they approached her a tall young man stepped up. The greeting between him and the girl was most af-
